Supplemental Gas Rationing Registration Opens Monday

Final Instructions Issued for Work in Star Auditorium; Final Class A Figures Listed.

When the deadline for "A" card registration for gasoline rationing passed last night at 9 o'clock, officials immediately turned their attention to the supplemental registration period to begin Monday in The Star auditorium.

The supplemental registration is only for those who feel they are entitled to more gasoline than the "A" ration books will allow.

If you intend to apply for supplemental ration, you should fill out your application blank completely before going to The Star auditorium.

Schedule of Hours

The hours for registering are from 12 noon to 9 p. m. daily throughout next week excepting on Thursday, which will be Thanksgiving day.

You may be able to save some time by filling out your application blank and mailing it to the Marion County Rationing Office, 193 East Center street, Marion. If you do this, it will be forwarded to the workers in The Star auditorium. They will check it carefully and send you a postal card telling you to (1) come to the auditorium to furnish additional information or (2) come to the auditorium to get your ration book. This procedure saves you waiting in the auditorium until your turn comes and also makes it unnecessary for you to wait for someone to look over your application. Many applications must be studied—many of them will require considerable time for processing.

Volunteers Needed

Rationing officials today renewed their appeal for volunteer workers, preferably those who can serve one shift daily for several days next week. The shifts are from 12 noon to 5:30 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. Persons intending to serve have been asked to come to the auditorium a short time before the start of the shift on which they intend to work. They will be given brief instructions.

Some Without Cards

When the "A" card registration period ended last night, ration officials felt sure there were several hundred automobiles in Marion county for which no cards had been obtained. Many soldier owners of cars left them behind, possibly accounting for a few of the idle autos. At any rate, persons who failed to get an "A" card before last night can't get one until after rationing starts on Dec. 1. After that date they may apply for an "A" card at the county rationing office on East Center street.

Central Junior High school registered about 1,000 persons yesterday, bringing its total to 4,117. Thomas A. Edison Junior High's total yesterday was about 500, making its three-day total about 2,000.

RUSSIANS DISPLAY FRESH STRENGTH

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Nov. 21—Successfully storming heights at Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, the Russians were reported showing fresh strength today in their bloody give-and-take with the German invaders.

During the night a Red army unit dislodged the enemy from a strongly fortified height southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus and killed 300 Germans, the midday communique said. In the Mozdok sector to the northeast of Nalchik another Soviet unit was credited with killing 100 foemen in a small scale attack such as the Russians have been launching in increasing numbers for several days.

Overnight at Stalingrad attacks by small enemy groups were reported beaten off in the southern outskirts.

The German command, defeated in its Caucasian drive on Ordzhonikidze, apparently was struggling to repair its broken lines southeast of Nalchik and recapture positions lost to the Russian counterblows.

ALL JAP BASES IN SOLOMONS UNDER THREAT

U. S. Drive Near To Oust All Enemy Troops from Islands.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—An American drive to wipe out remaining Japanese bases in the Solomon Islands appears near at hand today as terrific destruction of enemy troops and ships seemed to clinch the United States hold on Guadalcanal.

Announcing for the first time that the American grip on the prized island and its strategic airbase is "now very secure," Secretary of Navy Knox reported that half of a force of 1,500 Nipponese landed on Guadalcanal had been slaughtered and the rest routed.

Possibility of duplication in the Navy's reports of enemy ships lost in the great American sea victory of last week also was dispelled by Knox who declared 28 Japanese vessels had been sunk. These comprised a battleship, another battleship or heavy cruiser, six heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, six destroyers and 12 transports and cargo ships. Ten more were damaged.

U. S. Losses Reported

The reported American losses of two light cruisers and six destroyers in the same battle brought the nation's total of destroyed vessels in the Pacific war to 50 combat and 34 non-combat ships since Pearl Harbor.

Official announcements of the Navy and allied headquarters boosted the total Japanese losses to 126 combat and 246 non-combat ships.

Meanwhile, the first American naval officer to return to Pearl Harbor since the defeat of the Japanese armada estimated that the foe's attempts to recapture Guadalcanal had cost the lives of perhaps 10,000 Nipponese on the island alone. From 20,000 to 40,000 more were believed killed in the sinking of eight loaded enemy transports.

Declaring that the marines, soldiers and sailors felt that they had "been through everything and have taken everything the Japs could offer," Lieut. DeWitt Peterkin, 29, added at Pearl Harbor last night:

"They're optimistic and already

Turin Target of Heaviest RAF Raid On Italian Cities

Planes Roar Across Channel for Hour on 1,500 Mile Flight; All Return But Three.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 21 — The arsenal city of Turin was attacked last night by RAF bombers in a raid which an authoritative British source termed the "heaviest yet made on Italy."

Of the scores of Stirlings, Halifaxes, Lancasters and Wellingtons assigned to the mission, three failed to return.

The others made the 1,500 mile round trip successfully in another of the mass attacks that are proving an economical way to tear at the industrial vitals of the axis.

Reports from the south coast of England said "great numbers" of the big bombers droned southeast in the night.

An Associated Press correspondent at a southeastern port said the heavy bombers rumbled across the channel in waves for an hour last night, flying high above an overcast.

Raids Come Often

It was the fourth raid on Italy in eight nights, and the tenth, including one by day, since the latest and heaviest bomb offensive was set off October 22 with a grand scale lambasting of Genoa, key supply port for axis forces in North Africa.

So far, the onslaught against Italy has been costing the RAF only a fraction of the machines lost in similar heavy scale raids on Germany, showing, British observers say, that Italy is woefully short of anti-aircraft guns and night fighters.

The air ministry has announced that only 17 bombers have been lost in the eight night thrusts and one day sally from Oct. 22 through Nov. 18.

British observers say that this scant month of heavy raids already has shaken civilian morale badly in northern Italy as well as smashing many war industries and dock facilities and disrupting communications.

To Bolster Defense

The London Daily Sketch has reported that General Riedel, anti-aircraft defense chief for Germany, is being sent to Italy at the request of Premier Mussolini to reorganize Italian defenses against British raids.

The writer of this newspaper's "inside information" column commenting on the effect of the raids added:

"The whole country is apprehensive about the future.

"Three names are already being quoted as Mussolini's successors—(Count Dino) Grandi, (Count Galeazzo) Ciano and (Roberto) Farinacci.

"Italian liberals at a secret meeting decided to give all help to anyone leading a revolt against fascism.

County's Township Officials Hold Annual Election

Election of officers for 1943 and a discussion of legislative and other problems affecting the farmer and his work were highlights of a combined business and social meeting of the Marion County Township Trustees and Clerks association last night in the recreation room of the First Evangelical and Reformed church. Wives and friends of the trustees and officials of the county and their wives were guests for the meeting which was arranged by Walter Johnson, county engineer and his staff.

Covers were placed for 150 for the dinner and later there was a program and John J. Dugan, naval recruiting officer, showed pictures of the U. S. Navy activities.

COFFEE SALES HALTED TODAY

Midnight Deadline as Rationing Date Nov. 28 Draws Near.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—Coffee sales at retail stores halt for one week at midnight tonight.

The sales suspension is intended to give grocers a chance to stock up for the start of coupon rationing at midnight, Nov. 28, when every adult will be entitled to buy one pound every five weeks.

"Coffee will be available for every person over 15 when rationing starts," an office of price administration spokesman said, "but we're hoping that housewives won't cash in all the family's coupons at once right at the start. This would tax distribution facilities and might run some grocers temporarily short.

"Just buy the amount that you need. We can give absolute assurance there will be enough for all."

The first coffee ration may be purchased next Sunday or thereafter by presenting stamp number 27 from the sugar ration book, or ration book number 1. Any person who has more than one pound on hand Nov. 28 may not purchase coffee until the excess is used up. Sometime around the first of the year stamps covering the excess stocks of coffee in family cupboards on Nov. 28 will be removed from the book. No special registration is contemplated for this purpose; the removal of coupons will take place when consumers apply for the new universal ration book sometime after the year's end.

War Plant Cafeteria, One of Biggest Restaurants in Area, To Open Monday

To Employ 40 at Start with Rated Capacity of 800 Meals an Hour.

One of north-central Ohio's biggest restaurants will swing into action Monday when the cafeteria at the Scioto Ordnance Plant serves its first meals.

Since the war plant's employment is far below the level expected within a few months, the cafeteria will start on a scale that is modest in comparison to its total rated capacity. Even so, there will be some 40 employes and the establishment will be able to serve hot meals to 800 persons in an hour at rush periods.

Aside from a few key employes, the cafeteria workers are largely from Marion and nearby counties.

Operating Hours

The cafeteria will operate from 7 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. daily at first but later probably will be open 24 hours a day.

A choice of four meats and a variety of vegetables, salads and desserts will be offered.

Serving will be speeded by operation of two cafeteria lines during the rush periods.

It operates the cafeteria at the Iowa Ordnance Plant at Burlington, Ia. He and Mrs. Mueller, who expects to join her husband here, are parents of two sons, Capt. E. P. TROOPS DRIVE INTO OUTER DEFENSES OF BIZERTE AND TUNIS

By The Associated Press

American and British troops, scoring a five-mile advance in one direction, pitched into the Germans on the outer defenses of Bizerte and Tunis today while U. S. Flying Fortresses rained deadly punishment on the enemy hemmed in along a 30-mile-wide coastal strip.

A Nazi broadcast, quoting allied sources in Spanish Morocco, said allied forces had reached the area of Hammamet, about 40 miles southeast of Tunis, on the gulf of Gabes.

This, if confirmed, would mean that the allies had pinned the axis into a small corner of the northeast Tunisian coast and cut off the route of retreat to Italian Tripolitania. In that case, the two main axis forces in Tunisia and Libya would be split.

The Algiers radio said French troops had beaten off a new German attempt to land on the coast below Tunis and captured some Nazis in a fight northwest of the port of Gabes.

German reports said Adolf Hitler was rushing a stream of airborne reinforcements, including tanks, across the Mediterranean in a desperate effort to stem the allied offensive.

Field dispatches said the battle was growing more bitter hour by hour, with allied troops storming Nazi fortifications only 30 miles from both cities in the French North Africa colony.

One allied vanguard was reported to have driven forward five miles to a point 25 miles southeast of Tunis, the capital, fighting over ancient battlefields of the Carthaginian empire.

Italian headquarters asserted the battle was developing "on the Tunisian-Algerian border"—about 50 miles west of the scene described by allied dispatches—and declared that operations "have gone to the advantage of the axis."

A Fascist communique said British and American troops were turned back in the frontier region after losing armored cars and trucks.

The German radio claimed that axis forces Thursday night seized a railway station east of Tabarka, 65 miles west of Bizerte, and reported that Fighting French De Gaullist troops had been thrown back to the Tunisian frontier in the south.

Report Allied Losses

The Nazi broadcast said 12 allied tanks and 18 armored cars were destroyed in the first clash in Tunisia.

On the Libyan front, Britain's victorious Eighth army raised its flag over the "escape port" of Benghazi again and mobile British vanguards pressed hotly on Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating forces near Agedabia.

Agedabia lies 100 miles south of Benghazi and only 70 miles from the El Agheila defile, a narrow corridor between salt marshes and the sea, where Rommel is expected to make a last stand.

While the German radio exulted that Rommel managed to escape the British trap at Benghazi, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters reported that the Eighth army's advance forces were "giving Rommel's legions, exhausted by a 700-mile retreat across the desert, no rest.

No Fight at Benghazi

Hitler's headquarters acknowledged yesterday that Rommel had fled Benghazi without a fight, abandoning his last chance of escape by sea east of Tripoli, 400 miles away.

On the Tunisian battlefront, both allies and axis were rushing tank, troop and plane reinforcements into the struggle for the two key cities of Bizerte, once France's second biggest naval base, and Tunis.

Hitler also was apparently attempting to move in reinforcements by sea. The British reported that RAF bombers flying from Malta attacked an axis ship off Cape Bon, Tunisia, and left it sinking.

Invasion-jittery Italy meanwhile underwent another terrific assault during the night as Britain's far-ranging bombers soared 1,500 miles round trip across the Alps to blast the royal arsenal city of Turin.

London declared the raid was "the heaviest yet made on Italy," with scores of planes inflicting fresh havoc on the war center.

The Italian high command listed 29 dead and 120 wounded.

Coincidentally, the British radio reported that cries of "peace" greeted King Vittorio Emanuele when he went to see the bombed ruins of Genoa and Milan recently and demonstrations by the war-weary Italians led to dismissal of the city's governor.

U. S. and British Troops Hit Bizerte, Tunis Defenses

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 21 — United States and British troops grappled with German forces in the outer defenses of Tunisia's main strongholds of Bizerte and Tunis today in a battle which an allied spokesman predicted would grow in bitter intensity hour by hour.

Pressed into a narrow coastal stretch only 30 miles wide at some points between the important French naval base of Bizerte and Tunis, capital of Tunisia, the Germans were being pounded from the air by Flying Fortresses and RAF bombers as the bitter struggle on the ground unfolded.

Adolf Hitler was reported sending a stream of reinforcements into this fading foothold in North Africa. The allied troops were reported within 30 miles of both cities and one vanguard was placed even closer, 25 miles southeast of Tunis.

Troops Four Across Border

The Algiers radio reported early today that "allied armored troops are pouring across the Tunisian border.

"Allied parachutists," the announcer said, "are proceeding eastward without making contact with the enemy."

Several bombs were dropped in Algiers last night and caused "some damage," the radio report said. Bone, an Algerian city near the Tunisian border, had three alarms Friday, it was reported.

A French headquarters communique broadcast by the Moroccan radio said it was "a calm day."

From axis-held airfields in the coastal strip, German planes went up to challenge the advancing allied troops and they were engaged by allied fighters in furious air battles. Nine axis planes were reported shot down by the RAF in a day.

Pressure on [illegible] in the [illegible] of this North African [illegible] was reported increasing from [illegible].

The British Eighth army, in triumphant but careful pursuit of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's broken Afrika corps, was approaching the marshy bottleneck at El Agheila in Libya where the Germans were expected to make a stand. Rommel already had abandoned Benghazi to the British.

Catch Nazi Rear Guard

The Eighth army caught up with rearguards of Rommel's forces in the Agedabia area, about 100 miles south of Benghazi, yesterday while other British units moved into Benghazi and triumphantly hoisted the British flag over the port city.

While poor flying weather hampered allied pilots in their pursuit and attacks on the retreating forces in the desert, British bombers from Malta attacked axis air-

Back to the Bible

A SERMONETTE
By REV. DANA M. AUSTIN
Pastor of Fite Memorial Baptist Church

THE story is told of a missionary in Africa who met a converted cannibal sitting under a tree reading. He asked the African what he was doing. "Oh, I am reading the Bible" was his answer. "That book is out of date in my country," said the foreigner. The African's answer to the European was, "If it had been out of date here, you'd have been eaten long ago."

It seems that the Bible has become an out-of-date book in our land too. Rather than being the customary thing as it used to be, it is unusual to find the family who gathers in the evening to hear the reading of the precious Word of God.

We read in Amos 8:11: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord." This does not necessarily mean that laws will be passed to forbid the hearing of the Word of God or the preaching of it. We can go into too many churches in our land today with the full anticipation of hearing God's Word preached and find either an interpretation made of one of the Bible or the speaker spending the hour completely and entirely on the first chapter of Genesis. It is a book review or a discourse on some secular subject. People in China are starving because of crop failure, but some people are going to be hungry this winter because they were not interested in what could have been theirs.

If you and I do not profit from the blessings that are stored up in the Word of God for us it is because we have neglected that which could be ours. In the Lord's prayer — the 17th chapter of the Gospel of John, Jesus says in verse 17, "Sanctify them through Thy truth. Thy word is truth." David enjoyed the riches of God's Word and trusted himself against sin by hiding it in his heart. "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against Thee." Psalm 119:11.

THERE is a great blessing in searching out the great revelations in the Bible. Jesus told the Jews, "Ye search the Scriptures; because in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of Me." John 5:39 (Analytical Bible). The Bereans to whom Paul and Silas went, "were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so." Acts 17:11. As the ancient Bereans became great through God's Word, so has America become the great nation that it is. Our fathers who came to these shores and founded this great country had absolute faith in the Bible. Probably they did not understand it all, but they believed it anyway. Mark Twain said that it was not the part of the Bible which he did not understand that bothered him, it was what he understood. Let us as American citizens get back to the Foundation that made our country great—the infallible Word of God the Bible. This Book reveals the glorious person, our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. That is its first and last purpose. Let us cease asking, "what do you think" about Jesus and His word, and ask, "What saith the Lord."

Defense Counsel Rests in Kidnaping Trial

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21 — The trial of Clarence Parsons, 23, and his brother Arthur, 24, of Parkersburg, W. Va., on Lindbergh kidnap act charges will resume Monday morning with presentation of several rebuttal witnesses by the government.

Counsel for the parsons brothers rested their case before an all-male jury in U. S. district court yesterday after three defense witnesses testified the men were in Cincinnati or vicinity the night of Aug. 9 when they are charged with having abducted Vivian Wells, 15, and her sister Adalene, 20, near Aberdeen, O.

The younger girl testified she was held captive by the Parsons and raped twice by Clarence during a drive to Lexington, Ky. The older sister testified she escaped from the men's automobile near Manchester.

The Parsons brothers testified they spent the night of Aug. 9 in Cincinnati.

WEST POINT CADET TO BE SELECTED

Cong. Smith To Base Choice on Results of Examination.

Cong. Frederick C. Smith of Marion today announced that a civil service examination will be conducted Saturday, Dec. 12, at various post offices throughout the Eighth Ohio congressional district to select a candidate for appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point.

The adjutant general of the War Department has requested that the nominees be named as soon as possible. The successful candidate will enter the academy July 1, 1943.

The military academy appointment consists of one principal and two alternates. Principal and alternates will be selected according to the results of the Dec. 12 civil service examination. The person making the highest grade in the examination will be designated as principal. The next, first alternate, and the next, second alternate.

Congressman Smith stated that any young man meeting the age and physical requirements, whose legal residence is within the Eighth district, and regardless of the fact he participated in a previous similar examination, will be eligible if he has made written application to the congressman's office at Washington, D. C., prior to Dec. 3. The age limits governing entrance to the academy requires that all candidates be citizens of the United States and must be not less than 17 years of age and must not have reached their 22nd birthday on the day they enter the academy.

In view of the rigid physical requirements at West Point, the congressman requires each applicant, before undergoing the civil service eligibility examination, to submit a medical statement from any doctor the applicant desires, showing his physical fitness prior to Dec. 3.

SCHOOLS CLOSE AS WATER RUNS LOW

Newton Falls Hit as Demand Outruns Supply.

By The Associated Press

WARREN, O., Nov. 21—School pupils at nearby Newton Falls are getting a first-hand civics lesson on the problems of public water supply.

Because of a water shortage and the accompanying low pressure in afternoon hours, the three Newton Falls schools with a total enrollment of about 1,800 will operate only in the morning hours next week, on order of the county health department. The order may be extended if the water pressure does not improve.

The village is drilling additional wells to relieve the strain on the municipal system, caused by a sharp rise in population from about 2,500 to between 4,000 and 5,000 since the building of the Ravenna ordnance plant.

A large new well had been expected to remedy the situation considerably, but it went dry just before being placed in operation.

New Home Community Takes Form Rapidly in War Plant Staff Area

Houses Provided for Families of Officers and Men Subject to Call in Ordnance Factory Area at Any Time.

A new small community is taking form near Marion as a cluster of houses on State route 95 near the administration area of the Scioto Ordnance Plant, and its residents will be the families of men who are subject to call at any hour of day or night at the war munitions plant.

It could be called a mushroom town because it does not have an approximately a three-year history. It consists of three groups that have been moved from other parts of the area and 10 new ones fabricated in sections recently built there.

The buildings are known as staff houses, and already one of them is occupied by Major Harold F. Ogden, commanding officer, and his family, although some of the utility connections are yet on a temporary basis. It is expected most of the houses will be ready until the utilities are permanently provided.

Former Pilchard Home

The home Major Ogden and his family are occupying formerly was the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Pilchard. It was moved more than a mile from its former location at the Pole Lane and Lamphsher roads to its new site in a small grove.

Other houses in the staff area moved from other sites in the area are those of Sanford Seckel and George W. Bird farms, both on the Likens road.

Several other houses on the war plant area that did not have to be moved are already in use as staff houses. They are occupied by men such as Dr. Wendorf, in charge of the plant hospital, and Fire Chief McLaughlin, who are subject to call at any time of day or night.

The staff houses are on a plot that formerly was a part of the Berry-Holverstott Airport farm.

Other Buildings In Use

A store and service and other buildings, including the former Clark school, and four of the wood structure garages or storehouses, may be used for some purposes on that property, it is said. In addition to the use of the houses now going up, some of the other buildings are being fitted up for use by contractors and a few of the buildings are used for storage.

Approximately 50 houses of manufactured prefabricated type had been moved or were being removed to other sites, torn down for scrap or sold at auction for use elsewhere, with the Mohr-Hoffman company, Akron, contractor, in charge of the moving. Some were sold and moved intact to new sites.

One house formerly on the J. C. Seckel farm was turned over to the 753rd Battalion, U. S. Army Engineers at Bucyrus, who dismantled it and is making use of the materials in building a structure at the camp.

Some Too Costly

Originally, it was planned to move most of the houses on the area to nearby communities for "war workers" living quarters, but estimates on the cost of moving them and providing them with sanitary and utility services, along with repairs necessary in some instances, ranged as high as nearly $7,000 for some houses, so it was decided to move only those that could be conditioned at a cost comparable or below the cost of new prefabricated houses.

In line with war department regulations, children of school age in families of war plant officials and employes living on the area are furnished school bus service. A station wagon is used for this purpose, bringing eight children daily to schools in the city.

SHARE-RIDE TEST CASE CARRIED UP

Cleveland Action To Go to Supreme Court.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21—A test case on an automobile drivers' penalty under Ohio law for refusal to transport a passenger at a point of interest to a hitch-hiker patron will be taken to the state supreme court, it was learned today.

After an appellate court ruling favorable to Attorney M. L. Bernstein, he was preparing to have the case to the higher court, and planned to ask for an early judgment so that a decision could be handed down as soon as possible.

Bernstein, appointed by the Cleveland Bar association to represent a passenger in a suit filed here, declared the government rubber-hoarding program, with its share-the-ride requirements for cars to which supplementary rations are limited, would be affected by the outcome of the case.

Appellate Judges Lee E. Skeel, Ann Daniel E. Morgan upheld a lower court ruling, declaring the decision was justified by the war emergency. Presiding Appellate Judge P. L. A. Laughley dissented, contending share-the-ride passengers were in reality commercial passengers to whom the driver was responsible in the event of injury, as in the case of a public carrier. Written opinions will be delivered next week.

The original ruling was made by Chief Justice Homer G. Powell of common pleas court, who based it on an Ohio law known as the "guest statute," which relieves a private driver of liability.

He held that except in rare cases where "wilful and wanton negligence" was proved, the driver could not be held liable, but was a "host" to the passenger "guests" within the meaning of the Ohio law.

No actual injury is involved in the test case.

Handling of Draft Gets Public OK, Poll Shows

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 21—Local draft boards throughout the country can embark on their new task of drafting 18-19-year olds with the gratifying knowledge that a vast majority of the American people think they are doing a good job.

Public satisfaction with the work of local draft boards is actually higher today than it was in September, in spite of the fact that recent weeks have seen more and more married men being called up while the 18-19 draft bill was being delayed.

Here is the question which Institute field reporters put to a cross-section of the people throughout the nation:

"Do you think the draft is being handled fairly in your community?"

Here are the results of those with opinions:

Yes	82%
No	18

While at no time has there been more than a small minority of dissatisfaction, it is to note that for the first time, the steady growth of dissatisfaction (to be expected as larger and larger numbers were called into the army) has been arrested.

In May, 1941, after only a comparatively small number of men had been drafted, only seven per cent of those with opinions expressed dissatisfaction with the way local draft boards were doing their job. Six months later, 12 per cent were criticizing their local boards. In September of this year the figure was up to 21 per cent. Today it is back down to 18 per cent.

System Criticized

Perhaps even more frequent trouble to the men who are handling the job of drafting men into the armed services is that a few present critics only about one person in every 20 questioned had personal criticism of the local board.

The criticisms offered fall into two main categories:

1. Criticism of the selective service system.
2. Criticism of the local draft board.

Those dissatisfied with the selective service system criticized it on a number of scores.

Married men are being drafted while single men are still around.

The quotas are uneven throughout the country. Men should be called class by class.

Too many farmers badly needed on the farm are being drafted.

Older men are being drafted while young men are still available.

Too many skilled workers needed in industry are being drafted.

Of the extremely small percentage who showed dissatisfaction with the local draft boards, most cited examples of what they regarded as favoritism of one kind or another.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Nov. 22

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of major events moving to sound but swift denouement, in which all the affairs of church, clergy, sabbath conventions as well as the higher professions and avocations find firm basis, fortified by real inspiration or cultural stimuli. There may be peculiar and intriguing factors in this astral setup, calling for much discretion and good sense. It is a time for travel, change and renewal of contracts.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very important and promising year which may bring many solid benefits and opportunities, as well as pleasant change, happy and lucrative contacts, travel, publicity, and romance and fair fortune. Such combinations might, however, be imperiled by outbursts not guided by reason.

A child born on this day should possess exceptional talents and creative ability, with leanings toward the occult, mystical and philosophical.

For Monday, Nov. 23

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for sudden and unpredictable upheavals which may prove radical in significance to daily living. There may be danger in getting off to a false start in such new uprooting, which should be most carefully weighed and manipulated, lest there be dire results. Hew to the line of the old dependable and responsible in moments of dramatic excitement. Keep poised and calm.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an unusual and unforeseen uprooting, calling for the utmost poise, calm consideration and good judgment. The situation may be peculiar and abrupt, filled with dramatic episodes. But with proper management there may be surprising benefits and gratifications. If possible adhere to the old reliable persons, tactics and situations.

A child born on this day may be erratic, impulsive but inventive and original, but subject to upheavals.

MURDER on the Campus

By JERRY BRONDFIELD

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE
The Unbelievable Happens

SUSAN went out to dinner Sunday night with Grace and Howard Martin. Grace had been one of her closest friends before she graduated last June, and had gotten married shortly afterwards.

"Well, how do you like him?" Grace said, nodding toward her husband.

Susan laughed out loud. "What do you expect me to do—tell you that you picked a lemon or that you found him in a rummage sale?

Howard looks sweet enough and if he doesn't beat you I'll pass muster on him."

Martin grinned. "Thanks. From what Grace said, I wasn't to get an official okay until she'd heard from you."

"You're an engineer, aren't you?" Susan said.

Martin nodded. "We specialize in excavating work. You know—boom, boom, boom and the big shovels."

"It's such a pleasant thought," Grace put in, "to know that some day you might expect to have your husband come home in scattered pieces, with someone telling you 'the dynamite went off too soon, ma'am.' Wonderful thought, isn't it?"

"Depends on the insurance he leaves," Susan said dryly.

"Dynamite isn't so bad," Martin says. "It's the TNT we have to be careful with."

"Howard once brought home a little bit of the stuff and kept it in the garage overnight for a quick getaway in the morning. I didn't sleep a wink," Grace said.

Susan laughed. She remembered what the housekeeper at Phil Humphries' apartment had told her about Phil scaring her with a small glass phial of some sort of powerful explosive. Susan wondered what it might have been.

Suddenly an idea hit her. It was just the germ of an idea, really, but it grew on her uneasily. Before dinner was over she could hardly wait until tomorrow came. Somehow Susan thought she might have a clue to Phil Humphries' murder.

Susan knocked on Dr. Stephen Coulter's office door. Dr. Coulter opened it. "Come in, my dear," he smiled. "I got your message." He held a chair for her. "What is so urgent, now?"

"Dr. Coulter," Susan began earnestly. "Some time ago the police found out that Mr. Humphries might have been working on some sort of chemical invention before he was killed. If he was, it might possibly be a clue. Dr. Coulter, do you know whether Phil had been working on some sort of powerful explosive?"

Dr. Coulter's head cocked with interest. "Invention" Explosive?" He shook his head. "No. No, of course not. Not to my knowledge at any rate. You must be on the wrong track my dear. I certainly would have known."

"Well," sighed Susan. "It was just an idea I had."

Susan got a phone call from the university hospital that night. She was to go there immediately and report to a Dr. Louis Susan, a little apprehensive, was still wondering why she was being summoned to the hospital, of all places, when she was shown into Dr. Louis' office.

"Miss Drake," Dr. Louis said.

"You were sent for by Dr. Stephen Coulter, the head of the university chemistry department. He is suffering from a heart attack and although he is in no imminent danger he expressed an urgent desire to see you." Dr. Louis looked at his watch. "He also sent for a detective named Lake."

Susan jumped.

She met Lake outside Dr. Coulter's room. "What's up?" she asked, and got a shrug for an answer. Dr. Louis opened the door for them.

"Good evening, Dr. Coulter. I'm sorry you're not well," Susan said, sitting down. Lake sat down next to her. Dr. Coulter looked at one, then the other.

"Thank you, my dear, but my health is of no great importance. I brought you here because you told me that it was Humphries."

The Mallet

Susan froze to her chair, petrified by the suddenness of the statement. She could only stare in disbelief at his grave, almost smiling face.

Detective Sergeant Lake asked in his breath. "You killed—you say you killed Philip Humphries?" he blurted out finally.

Dr. Coulter nodded. "Yes, it was I, and I also realize that anything I say may be used against me. But that is quite all right. This is a confession, officer. Let me tell you the entire story.

"My doctors tell me I cannot live more than six months. It's my heart. I have known this for some time. No one else knew it though.

"Philip Humphries was my pride. I had taught him, trained him, given him his first position on my staff. He was brilliant and I had fine ideas for him. I thought he would continue along the path I had set for him.

"I wanted him to do big things in chemistry, not for personal glory or wealth but for the good he could do the human race.

"I found out too late that Humphries' mind had taken off on a tangent that resulted me. Secretly he had been working on a powerful explosive, a force more powerful than most of the explosives known to man today.

"I abhor war and the violence that man imposes upon himself. I had wanted Humphries to pursue his talents to peaceful ends.

"When I discovered his secret, it was with almost fiendish glee he told me of the sickening destructiveness of his explosive. That was Philip Humphries' goal in chemistry—destruction, not creation. It was too much for me.

"I came upon him quite by accident the night he had completed his formula. Up until then I had known nothing. He couldn't help gloating over it. He was sick of working for coffee and cakes as he put it. He was going to make a fortune, now. He was sick of hearing me preach about the good I wanted him to do. He laughed in my face and I slapped him."

Dr. Coulter paused, slightly out of breath. Susan continued to stare, her lips parted. Lake's mouth was set in a straight line.

"Humphries struck me back, knocked me against a work bench. One of the maintenance men must have left a heavy wooden mallet there because I had never seen it in the lab nearby before. I struck him with the mallet. I must have killed Humphries instantly. My hand was still on the mallet when the maintenance men and guard came."

"Why didn't you confess before?" Lake said.

"I'm coming to that," Dr. Coulter said.

what is America fighting for!

Freedom of Religion!

(One of the Essentials of a Democracy)

In America, Faith has no limits. America believes in and hallows the religions of the world.

To Americans, the right to worship as they choose is as fundamental as the right to own their own property, or to choose their own life's work. But to our enemies, America's way is intolerable. The very precepts upon which our American life is built are the things they seek to destroy.

Faith and courage . . . initiative and honest sweat . . . a passion for liberty and justice and equal rights for free men—those are the seeds from which the American way of life has sprung. Today, America's Faith is undaunted. The light of freedom burns indelibly in the hearts of free American men, fighting today until Victory!

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist.

Q. About the middle of October, I sowed grass seed. As yet it has made no appearance except a few blades here and there. What I want to know is whether this seeding ought to have germinated by this time or whether it has frozen out or rotted. Also, will the seed I have sown hold over the winter till spring or will I have to make a new seeding then? A. V., Cincinnati.

A. Although most of us are inclined to feel that the ground is rather moist, actually, in most parts of the state it is surprisingly dry, in fact, so dry that I have received a number of questions such as yours. Unless we have considerable rain in the near future, it would pay to thoroughly sprinkle the lawn, soaking it to a depth of at least two inches, preferably more. Although, I would rather have grass seed come up earlier than this, unless this is a very early winter, you have a fair chance of this new seeding becoming established and coming through the winter satisfactorily. In fact, some of the seed may not germinate until next spring so I would not hurry to reseed until about the early part of March.

Q. Will you please tell me if the fruit of the Japanese crab is poisonous? M. G. W., Lancaster.

A. If you will just forget the "Japanese" part, you will find that all crabapplies whether they are cultivated varieties, flowering crabs, whether they are from China, Russia, or Japan, are all edible and make excellent jelly.

Making Up Closet Space Shortage

Above are three ready-made cupboard units which are suitable for any bathroom and easily installed. This home-maker bought hers from her local lumber dealer, painted them white; top in color.

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

There's a silver lining to the cloud that hangs over the home with too little closet room for household linens. For one nice thing about not having enough cupboards of this sort is that it's so easy to get more! You either build them, or buy them ready-made.

Where there's a man around who's handy with tools, it's simply a matter of explaining what you need, then leaving him to work the problem out in his own way.

Be sure that your home carpenter understands the necessity for a good assortment of shelves and drawers, some shallow and some deep. The shallow ones, of course, are for things you use often and want to get at quickly; the deep ones, for things you use only occasionally and can take time to paw around for.

If your handy man has gone off to the wars, there's still a simple solution to the not-enough-line-closets problem. Just call on your local lumber dealer and select from his stock the size cabinet you need. It'll come unpainted, but that's all the better, because you can paint it yourself to suit your own decorative scheme.

You can get many colorful effects, too, by the use of decalcomanias.

NEW LEAK STOPPER

To stop dripping of water from pipes, tanks, walls, ceiling, and ducts due to condensation or sweating, a new plastic cork coating can be easily applied with a brush, trowel or spray to metal, concrete, brick, or wood surfaces. The coating insulates and produces an attractive stucco-like finish.

Wallpaper borders have been invented that are pregummed and attached to old paper or other surfaces after being soaked in water a few minutes.

Three Permits Issued for Construction Work

Three building permits for construction estimated at $1,050 were issued last week by Mrs. Maxine Gorton, city clerk. The preceding week two permits were issued for construction estimated at $200.

The permits issued last week are as follows:

James Petrow, North State street, dwelling and garage, $1,000.

J. E. Snare, 274 Oliver street, small addition to dwelling, $25.

Levi Weaver, 486 East Mark street, addition to garage, $25.

INSULATION CUTS COST OF HEATING

Elimination of Waste Possible at Reasonable Cost.

Home insulation will play an important part in the reduction of fuel consumption this winter, government housing officials point out. Greater economy in household heating will mean more to the national economy than to the individual.

In an effort to reduce the demand for fuel for domestic purposes, both government and private engineers suggest thrift measures to check home-heating wastes.

One of the first things to check is the heating plant itself. This should be done by well-equipped heating experts or service men, to assure maximum efficiency of the heating system. This check should include investigation of fuel combustion and, if necessary, the adoption of methods for improving its efficiency.

Considerable waste in heating effectiveness can be attributed to single-glazed windows and leakage through improperly fitted doors and windows.

Home insulation is another way in which homes can be kept comfortable and with the use of less fuel. In urging the use of insulation as an effective conservation measure the bureau of mines points out that if less fuel is used for civilian needs, augmented requirements for the war program can be met without unduly increasing the number of men needed at the coal mines or oil wells, or adding new producing units. In addition, transportation facilities will not be taxed so severely.

Moreover, it is pointed out, reducing the running expenses of houses through proper heat insulation helps home owners maintain payments on their properties and by minimizing foreclosures helps to stabilize the financial structure of the country.

Repairs and Limited Construction Possible Without WPB Approval

Limit of $200 a Year Placed on New Construction Without Board's O. K.; Sound Repair Plan Urged.

Repairs necessary to keep homes in sound working condition may be made without specific authorization of the war production board under Conservation Order L-41, as long as there is to be no change in the design of the structure.

Neither is it necessary to obtain priority assistance if these repairs do not call for the use of materials on the critical list, or if such materials are required, and they are already in the possession of the property owner.

$200 for New Construction

New construction on existing homes may be undertaken without authority by the WPB if the cost of such new construction is not to exceed $200 in any one year. Included in this category are home insulation, and the installation of storm doors, storm windows, and weatherstripping.

The purpose of placing a limit on the amount which may be spent for all civilian construction is to conserve materials and labor for direct war production purposes. However, cognizance is taken of the fact that a limited amount of construction is necessary to maintain homes in sound and livable condition. The expenditure of $200 a year, if wisely applied, will readily cover the cost of any new construction necessary to keep the average small home in sound working condition.

Improvements Not Covered

Naturally, it will not permit anything in the way of extensive alterations, improvements, or modernization. Such construction work must, of necessity, be postponed for the duration unless it is necessary for war purposes.

All necessary home repairs should be made without delay. When neglected the cost increases with every passing day. Procrastination will also call for a wasteful use of materials and labor later on. Such wastes cannot be permitted. It is the duty of every home owner to see that such wastes cannot be charged to neglect on his part.

Neglect Increases Cost

To conserve materials and manpower for direct war production, and keep the cost of property repairs at a minimum, every home owner is urged strongly to make all necessary repairs without delay. Neglect increases the amount of materials necessary to put a property back in sound working order. Neglect also increases the cost, placing an unnecessary expense upon the owner.

Another important factor is that by neglecting repairs, the owner may discover later on that he will be unable to make them. The job may become so extensive that he will be unable to secure the materials or the manpower needed to put his home back in sound condition. In which case there will be further deterioration of the property, which in turn will reduce its value.

STEP REPAIRS

In planning home repairs, the owner should always think of safety as well as appearance. Rickety front and back steps, which are a constant cause of injury may be easily and economically repaired with funds obtained from qualified private lending institutions under the FHA Title I or home-repair program.

Bad News for Chiselers

WHEN gasoline ration cards were being handed out in eastern states there was a surprising lack of demand for extra rations. OPA was quite concerned about it.

But a strange thing happened. Many of the persons who had obtained special rations proved willing to forego what they had obtained and settle down to basic rations.

It simply was too uncomfortable to look their neighbors in the eye if their right to special rations was not clear. Their neighbors knew more about them than the strangers who handled their gas rationing applications.

The necessity of displaying the type of rationing book being used in the windshield of each car is bad news for chiselers. Fooling the government isn't much of a trick, but fooling their own friends is more of a trick than most of them care to tackle.

Inventory

ONE YEAR ago, with the decision made to deliver the sucker punch at Pearl Harbor, Japan was taking advantage of America's misconceptions about the war to polish up the details of its perfidy.

Some of the more comforting misconceptions were that the United States was going to handle the wholesale end of the war while others did the fighting; that the Russians were going to take care of the Germans; that the Germans were reaching the end of their string; that the Japanese were nothing to worry about and that if they did pick a fight they could be wiped off the face of the earth in two weeks—three at the most.

Those items of nonsense are history now. It would be a great effort to know that they have not been supplanted by other items of similar nonsense. A few possibilities come readily to mind. For instance:

That the United States, having decided that it must supply manpower as well as equipment, can take the added responsibility in stride without any undue trouble; that as soon as Germany and Italy have folded up, the United Nations will dispose of Japan in two weeks—three at the most.

Americans still are underestimating the strength of the coalition that is determined to destroy them. They are still overestimating their own capacity, choosing to agree with those who think it's what they say it is, instead of with those who know it is considerably less than that. As the anniversary of Pearl Harbor approaches, perhaps it should be celebrated with some of the skepticism that prevailed throughout the United States the day after the great awakening.

Can France Be Destroyed?

THE latest shuffling of French political figures points up clearly the question raised by Germany's policy for dealing with that defeated country: Can France be destroyed?

Its sovereignty has been destroyed. Its population is being systematically weakened by the conqueror's manipulations. Its territory has passed out of its control. The empty shell of its government is in the hands of men who confess to being the creatures of the enemy. Its industrial resources are controlled by Germany, and even its military organization and materials have been diverted to German use. Yet, France endures.

The one characteristic that has distinguished France has not been destroyed. It is perhaps stronger now than it has been at any time since the World war. Frenchmen never wanted independence more than they want it now. Their hope for freedom has been rekindled by adversity—and that, more than colonies, or military power, or the privilege of sovereignty is France. The one thing Germany must destroy to destroy France is being preserved.

—But Not Above Average

ONE of the propaganda objectives is said to be establishment of respect for the fighting ability of the Japanese. This is all to the good, but certainly the danger of going too far with it should be realized at the outset.

The United States has discovered that everything it believed about the Japanese before Pearl Harbor was false. They are good fighters; their prestige in that field has been established solidly. But it would be as misleading now to over-estimate them as it was before to under-estimate them.

The mistake of over-estimating the Germans has been costly. Until Russia proved that the German military machine was capable of getting fuzzed up in a major campaign and until British pilots found the weak places in Goering's air force, potential resistance to Hitlerism actually was paralyzed in some cases by belief that Germany was insuperable.

The Japs are better than they were believed to be, due to a ghastly slip-up in military information. But they are not above average. On the contrary, wherever they have had to fight on even terms they have been beaten. The evidence indicates that they will be found a little below average when their bid for superiority finally has been rejected.

Today and Tomorrow

Some Basic Principles for Armistice Already Need Consideration.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 — Last Tuesday, Mr. Sumner Welles spoke at the Herald Tribune Forum, saying it is only we should not again resort to the procedure adopted in 1919 for the settlement of the future of the world.

"We cannot afford to permit the basic issues by which the destiny of humanity will be determined to be resolved without prior agreement in hurried confusion by a group of harassed statesmen working against time, pressed from one side by the popular demand for immediate demobilization and crowded on the other by the exigencies of domestic politics."

This important declaration means that the American government will wish the United Nations to agree upon the terms of an armistice which settles before the fighting ceases certain basic issues, such as the important frontiers of Allied and enemy states.

This does not mean that the plans of the whole post-war constitution of the world can or should be settled before the armistice. It does mean that the basic frontiers should be settled, because if they are not settled in advance, the armies of occupation will attempt to settle them by force in order to present the statesmen at the peace conference with accomplished facts which cannot be undone except by force.

General Principles

Experience teaches us, I believe, that there are certain general principles which must guide us in arriving at the prior agreements which Mr. Welles has asked for.

One is that we must never forget how permanent is the influence of history and geography, and that we must make no settlements which defy these enduring realities. Thus a basic weakness of the Versailles peace was that it raised France to a place of power in Europe which France, with her declining population and insufficient resources was not able to exercise. Another was to make a European settlement at Versailles in which Russia did not have her proper place as a great European power. Another was the creation of a Polish state which Hitler has condemned Poland to inevitable and mortal conflict with our two much more powerful neighbors. Another was the attempt to deny that the peoples of the Danube Valley are by their history and their economic and military geography bound together in one great community.

A second great principle which we have to bear in mind is that while retribution must be complete, it must be swift. A lingering punishment will not work. This was the error of the reparations systems set up at Versailles. The penalties must be enacted at once from the guilty ones in the moment of their defeat, and not protracted upon a generation which is innocent, or enforced by a generation which, having its own preoccupations, will have forgotten the crimes.

A third great principle is that because men have equal rights and states both large and small have equal dignity and equality of juridical rights, we must not pretend that great powers and weaker ones do not exist.

Authority

A fourth great principle that we have to bear in mind is that in negotiating with our Allies, and in dealing eventually and definitely with the enemy, we must seek whenever it is possible to do so to start from the foundation of legitimate authority. Undoubtedly, for example, the French nation, when it is liberated, will make a fourth republic to replace the Third Republic. But what we must first restore are the constitution and the laws of the Third Republic by which Frenchmen can by due process of French law reconstruct their own political order.

The most difficult of all problems in Europe will, of course, be to determine what kind of German authority the United Nations can accept. It will have to be an authority which they can trust—at least somewhat—and at the same time in authority which the Germans will respect—at least somewhat. It is almost certain that this problem is insoluble before the armistice, and probably it will remain insoluble for a considerable period of time after the armistice.

Long Hours for Admiral

Stark Believes in Hard Work and Practices It.

ADMIRAL STARK

By WILLIAM KING
AP Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 20—The spring day eight months ago when Admiral Harold R. Stark arrived in London to take over his new duties as commander of United States naval forces in Europe he went directly to his headquarters, pitched into the problems of his new command and worked far into the night.

The start was symbolic for this soft-spoken, white-haired naval officer. Through meetings, conferences and man-to-man talks with high ranking British naval officers he works to keep the admiralty in London and the navy department in Washington closely coordinated. This delicate task comes on top of his duties supervising the intricate organization of his widespread command.

That isn't all. Admiral Stark holds a diplomatic job as well. He is United States Representative to General Charles DeGaulle and Fighting France.

No matter how late he works, he is up again by 7 a. m. and is at his headquarters about an hour later. The springy walk and glow of health in the face of the sixty-two year old admiral show that he thrives on hours that would send many a younger man to a rest home.

Half Holiday, Quit at 6 p. m.

"We had a half holiday Tuesday," jokedd one of his personal secretarial staff. "We got off at six o'clock."

Admiral Stark lives in a small apartment about three minutes walk from the London square which Englishmen call "Little America" because of the large number of uniformed Americans to be seen there night and day.

"Then I would feel free to take secret and confidential documents to my rooms to study them there," he said recently.

He walks to his office which is in a large modern building, guarded by green-uniformed United States marines, and plunges immediately into his work—dictating mail and memoranda, seeing members of his staff and reading urgent reports which cannot wait the quieter evening hours.

He frequently follows his old Washington habit of eating a light lunch at his desk. Just as often, however, midday finds him with an appointment for a luncheon conference. These range over a wide field, from officers of the admiralty to representatives of any of the allied nations with headquarters in London. Dinner may also be the occasion of another such meeting.

Likes Long Walks

When the press of work permits the admiral goes for a week-end to a refuge to the country where he indulges a passion for long walks. (His only other hobby is sailing in small boats, but he has given that up for the duration.)

He now holds the command under which he served twenty-seven years earlier as flag secretary to Admiral William F. Sims in the first World war.

Stark's London office might be the office of any executive of a large business firm — except for the touches that make it typically Stark.

Behind his comfortable chair are the stars and stripes and his admiral's flag which is flown from his ship when he is at sea. Scattered about the room are an imposing collection of autographed photographs. President Roosevelt and King George head the list, which includes Cordell Hull, Harry Hopkins, Frank Knox, Henry Stimson, Admiral Ernest King and General George Marshall.

Stark received the picture of the king when, by royal invitation, he accompanied the British monarch on an inspection of the home fleet.

The admiral has gained a reputation in London—as he had at home—for great sincerity and absolute frankness. The same attitude, he thinks, should prevail in all Anglo-American relations.

No Trouble in Future

"Of course Britain and America will get along together, not only because they must but because it is natural," he said. "We may have our little tiffs, but the best of friends have arguments and their friendship is not harmed when they get things settled.

"That is the point of view I try to put over in my dealings with the British and when I speak to informal gatherings."

Then he added as he stood by the broad window of his office:

"But we must also remember that everything must be subordinated to one central idea—to get ahead with winning the war."

The office also reveals the admiral's pleasure in discovering a well-turned phrase which expressed in a few words his philosophy or beliefs. "An egg today, a feather-duster tomorrow," "Life begins each morning," "When in a hurry, wait awhile," "There is no substitute for hard work" are a few of the favorites on his list.

In a prominent position on his wall is a color print of "Old Glory" and written beneath is the legend, "these colors will not run."

"I particularly like that one," the admiral says.

"VITAL SCRAP"

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Nov. 21, 1932.

Adolf Hitler, who had been campaigning nine years to head the German government, finally received a mandate to form a cabinet. The request came from President Von Hindenburg but he attached to it certain political conditions which some observers thought might make Hitler's acceptance improbable. The president insisted that the Hitler cabinet be backed by a "majority or almost a majority" in the reichstag. Hitler retired to confer with his advisors, promising an early answer. One of his closest associates said "It is obviously impossible for Hitler, who has spent his whole political life in a bitter fight against parliamentary haggling, to try to resurrect a system which already is dead. It is most likely that he will tell the president that he is still ready to head an authoritary cabinet but his reply will be so conciliatory as to leave open all doors to negotiations." The president was represented by those close to him as unwilling to place Germany's fate in Hitler's hands without attaching strings to the situation.

Fred M. Hochstetter of Hane avenue left for Harrisburg, Va., to join a party of friends and motor to Kissimmee, Fla., where he was to spend the winter.

A survey of Marion food markets showed that the cost of a Thanksgiving turkey dinner with all trimmings would total about $4.85.

Mrs. Marion Cheney and Mrs. C. W. Biddle were awarded honors in bridge at a meeting of the Hi-Jinx club held with Mrs. John Jacoby at her home on South State street.

Papers on the mediaeval period were read by Mrs. E. H. Cowan, Miss Beulah Smith and Mrs. French Crow when the Advance club met with Mrs. J. A. Dodd of Franklin street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, Nov. 21, 1922.

President Harding, in a message to congress on the ship subsidy bill, declared a strong merchant marine was a vital necessity to the nation and urged immediate enactment of legislation to provide the ships and equipment.

Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana proclaimed "war to the finish" against the Ku Klux Klan in his state. He said, "A man is a damnable coward to attach himself to such an organiation and remain with it as one of its active forces."

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Everly of Senate street.

The feature picture at the Grand theater was a home-town movie, "Marion Adopts a Baby". The cast included E. L. Merchant, Charles Rinehart, Miss Frances Irvin, Douglas Felt, Mrs. Grace Hudson, George McNamara, Philip Guthery, Louis Roebuck, Marvin Hanover, Miss Pauline Foreman, Miss Louise Foreman, Miss Virginia Smith, Miss Irenaea Kraus, Miss Trella Minard, Miss Virginia Richardson, Miss Evelyn Culp and Miss Florence Lewis.

Walter Prendergast was host to a small company of friends at dinner at the Marion club. It was a farewell preliminary to his leaving for Washington to be a luncheon guest of the Belgian ambassador, Barton de Cartier. Mr. Prendergast was to sail Nov. 28 for England enroute to Brussels to make up his secretarial duties at the American embassy.

A miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Ruth Davis, whose marriage to Frank Steffen was to be an event of the near future was given Miss Davis' sister, Mrs. Norbert Sams, at the Sams home.

Let the victory fall where it will, we are on that side.—(Emerson)

The 40-Hour Week

Proposed Suspension and Its Significance.

By HERMAN ALLEN

THE demand for suspension of the 40-hour week is only a little snowball on top of Capitol Hill right now. But there are plenty of people in congress who would like to give it a push and send it booming right out into Pennsylvania avenue and from there right into every factory in the nation.

What would this mean to the war effort?

In the first place it would be best to clear the air by emphasizing that the 40-hour law does not put a flat limit on the length of time anybody may work. It merely says that after a man has worked 40 hours in any week he must be paid overtime rates for any time he works the rest of the week.

To suspend the 40-hour week would merely mean that a worker could put in more than 40 hours before his overtime pay would begin.

Financial Effects

Washington labor circles declare the effect on production of war goods probably would be very little. War production is on an overtime basis right now. The government is paying the overtime, so it wouldn't save the employer anything. It would, of course, save the government a lot of money.

On the other hand, such a move might be of great benefit to non-war industry, retail stores and so on. Many of these concerns, faced with rising costs and taxes, cannot afford to pay much overtime and may not be able to get help to run extra shifts of only 40 hours.

In connection with lengthening work hours, it is of interest to note what happened in Germany. A report to the International Labor Office on the German situation says:

"When hostilities broke out it was considered necessary to give the government greater freedom of action. By the war economy order of Sept. 1, 1939, all restrictions on normal hours of work for adult men were abolished.

"Less than three months later it was found necessary to restore the regulations in a certain measure. . . . The president of the National Employment Office observed: 'Attention must be paid to the physical and mental limits to any extension of hours. Any abuses lightly committed in this respect will have to be paid for sooner or later'."

Limits Set

Shortly thereafter the government decided to restore a limit to the working of overtime in excess of the normal 8-hour day, the limit being fixed at 10 hours a day as a general rule and 12 hours for some jobs which involved lengthy periods of time when the worker was simply required to be present.

The German labor protection order of Dec. 12, 1939, said: "Even though it is necessary to increase output, exaggerated demands on labor must be avoided."

Britain had a similar experience. The British found that after a certain number of hours, depending on the type of work, errors increased and the value of overtime work fell off.

U. S. Manpower Commissioner McNutt recently observed that it was his opinion, too, that returns diminished according to the type of work. For example, a precision worker making delicate aviation instruments would suffer nervous fatigue much sooner than one operating a punch press.

Thoughtful Veterans Send Soldiers Packs of Cards To Meet Urgent Demand.

By DAMON RUNYON

THE members of the American Legion surely ought to know what soldiers are sending playing cards to the troops our armed forces on various fronts throughout the world. The Forty and Eight—the "fun and honor" organization of the Legion has charge of this particular activity.

It seems that playing cards are a big feature beds in most of the areas where American soldiers, sailors and marines are stationed. Up to the first of November, the Forty and Eight had sent 91,660 packs—or, as we used to say in my old home town, "decks"—of cards to the lads. It may interest you to know that our expeditionary forces are on over 30 islands in various parts of the world and the Forty and Eight hopes to get cards to all fronts.

I am aware that this enterprise may bring frowns from some high minded citizens who deem card playing an iniquity, but I would like to assure them that it is not as bad morally or otherwise, as some other things with which the Legionnaires might have supplied the soldiers. I think it would prove very bad for our fighting men if the Forty and Eight had decided on roulette wheels or French hazard, instead of cards.

I WOULD place card playing on about the same moral scale as the bingo that is sometimes in some churches and the numerous drawings for War Bonds and other prizes that come off in certain houses of worship.

If this scale strikes the righteous as low, perhaps we ought to discontinue card playing, bingo and the drawings after the war.

I admit I can see one danger in sending cards to the soldiers, and this danger is the fact that the Legionnaires are using both new and used decks for the Forty and Eight. The new ones are all right, but the thought occurs to me that the collectors might send some of those decks of "readers," or marked cards that are employed by unscrupulous players in card games. These "readers" might fall into the hands of some warrior who could use the markings.

I would not suggest that there is any of our armed forces any low life who would take advantage of his discernment in this connection, but I feel there is no sense in putting temptation around in a loose fashion. After all, when a soldier on a lonely station has nothing to read but "readers," he might possibly become absent minded and forget his schooling in ethics.

I KNEW a soldier in France in 1917 who had hold of a used deck of cards that had been sent over with a big passel of these cards by some philanthropist of those days. He discovered during a game of poker, that the cards had previously been "crimped," that is, marked by the finger nails of a former possessor, undoubtedly a scoundrel.

After the deck had been run through, my friend knew every card by the backs, but he did not take advantage of his knowledge and when this forebearance became generally known he was decorated by the commanding officer. If this incident took place recently, and not years ago, it is easy to convince me that the "crimped" cards had been prepared by some of our Axis experts of this period.

Changing Adm. Darlan

Associated Press Features

Few men have changed roles so much in war as balding, taciturn, pipe-smoking Louis Xavier Francois Darlan, 61, one "strong man" of Vichy France and collaborator with Hitler, who now, as political leader of the North African French, resists the Axis.

Admiral Darlan

Forty years in the French Navy, a graduate of the French Naval Academy, Darlan has never been with his fleet in a major battle. During World war I, he commanded a battery of naval guns on the Western Front, was repeatedly cited for marksmanship, coolness, energy. In 1939 he became commander in chief of the French naval forces.

When France fell, Darlan joined Petain's cabinet, soon became vice-premier and was designated by Petain as his successor. Bitter toward British (due to Britain's pounding of French warships off Oran in 1940) he threatened to send his fleet against England to break the blockade of France. With apparent Petain blessing, he then became generalissimo of French land, sea and air forces and of overseas colonies, was regarded by the world as appeaser second only to Laval.

Darlan is short, husky, precise—meticulous. If he smokes his pipe horizontally, feeling fine; if the pipe tilts up, he is fighting mood.

Sitting

Lowell Mellett of the office of war information spoke recently to the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures about the feature and sitting, as follows:

"We are blessed in the motion picture with a thing called the double feature, or full length pictures at one sitting. . . . Continually we get demands from theater owners that the government do something to put an end to double features. . . . I prefer to believe that businessmen as competent as the theater men have proved themselves will not long continue to be stumped by this competitive condition of their own creation.

"There is another reason, and that is: Entertainment is essential, but life cannot be all entertainment, not in these times. The habit of sitting three or four or even more hours, with one's mind afloat in a troubled world, hardly equips the American people for the serious job of dealing with reality. That way lies degeneration rather than growth. And we must grow.

"We must grow into a people competent to win this war. We must grow into a people competent to face the greatest task ever given any people—the task of shaping a new world immune to the blight of war. And we can grow only through the exercise of our powers, physical, mental, spiritual. We cannot grow by sitting on our physical or metaphysical fanny."

Until Marion housewives, the hotels, restaurants and institutions get into the swing of preparing their tin cans for salvage, the collections probably will be slow, he believes.

They reiterated his statement that the tin can salvage program is being carried on under orders of the war production board.

FARMER FOUND DEAD AT HOME NEAR DEFIANCE

Slaying Or Hunting Accident, Police Ask.

By The Associated Press

DEFIANCE, O., Nov. 21—Authorities sought to determine today whether Frank Sabo, 67, bachelor farmer found shot to death, was the victim of a hunting accident or intentionally slain.

A Hicksville farm laborer informed Prosecutor Erwin L. Clemens and Sheriff John K. Bridenbaugh that he discovered Sabo's body yesterday when he went to the latter's farm to invite Sabo to go hunting. The body lay in a road 300 yards from Sabo's home. A shotgun charge had struck the victim's head.

Bridenbaugh said one discharged shell and four that had not been fired were found near the body. Two other hunters discovered a recently fired shotgun in a nearby ditch.

The sheriff said a box of shells, with five missing, was found in the laborer's automobile but that the man contended he used them shooting woodchucks. The laborer was held for further questioning.

High School Girl, Veteran Hunter Both Shoot Foxes

A Harding High school girl, Angeline Larson, 17, not only went hunting Friday and got herself the game limit, but topped off the day's kill with a handsome red fox. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larson of 226 Pearl street and a senior at Harding High school where she is a student in the distributive education class.

Sharing honors with Miss Larson in bagging big game on the opening day of the hunting season is Frank Buffington of 733 East Farming street and Neal Berridge of 636 North Main street, who also added red foxes to their list Friday afternoon.

The high school girl brought down her fox with her first shot—in fact she only wasted two shots throughout the day—on the Henry Lauer farm west of Green Camp after several other hunters in the area had taken a shot at him.

She hunts with her father and this is the second year she has followed the sport. On her first venture she bagged four rabbits and "got up" another. She uses a single barrel 20-gauge shot gun given her by her father, who thinks that "everyone should learn how to shoot." She did her practice work last year with a rifle.

She is going to have a scarf made of the pelt.

Mr Buffington, who is 70 years old, bagged "the first fox he ever saw to shoot at," and he's been in the game since he was 14 years old. He and his companions, Al Corbin and Charles F. Baldauf, were sitting on a log at the Baldauf farm in Pleasant township, when the animal came into view. Mr. Corbin's shot missed the animal. In addition to the fox Mr. Buffington bagged four rabbits.

His red fox went to market as Mrs. Buffington has a 'coon scarf and didn't want another.

Mr. Berridge, who is 53, and his son, Donald 17, were hunting at the Coulter farm eight miles east of Marion. The animal weighed 20 pounds and measured four feet from the tip of his nose to the tip of his tail. The other foxes also weighed about 20 pounds each.

Mackenzie Finds Allied Leaders In Fine Fettle

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

CAIRO, Nov. 21—[illegible] gratifying the air of well confidence in both British and American military headquarters on the Nile as the chase of the disorganized Axis forces continues westward across the Libyan desert into the crimson glow of Hitler's setting sun.

Now of course figures of speech are among the world's greatest liars and must be used with great reserve. So I hasten to add that it is with deliberation that I refer to the master gangster's sinking sun, for it most assuredly has passed its zenith, considering all aspects of the European war.

No Overconfidence

Still, while confidence among our captains of the war is 100 per cent, there is not the slightest disposition to underrate the magnitude of the task ahead of us. The Boche has plenty of fight left in him and his striking power is great despite his losses.

It is true that the only way we can lose now is through Allied errors in judgment, but a major mistake now might prove disastrous.

In assaying the Libyan position we must recognize that Rommel's sensational flight is impelled by tactical necessity rather than fear. He is a rash man who, even in hatred, claims the German soldier is afraid to stand and fight.

Present indications are that Hitler has no intention of causing North Africa to be abandoned without another stand.

Air power is becoming increasingly important as the battle swells to a climax with the allies pressing the axis from west and east.

The allies, already superior in the air, are gaining strength as they advance into enemy territory.

At this crucial juncture, Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, famous air exponent, has arrived to take command of United States Army forces in the Middle East. It is my observation that he is swinging into action fast.

Talks with General

I had an interesting chat with the general a couple of nights ago and while one isn't privileged to quote him I came away with the impression that American experts are looking forward to the fascinating possibilities of bombing both Italy and German territory from North African airports as soon as the present drive is over.

I talked with many great military men in recent weeks and the almost unanimous view was that if we are to force Hitler to his knees next year—and that is held to be possible—the first requirement is that he be rendered impotent in western Europe and Germany by heavy bombing of his industrial centers and communications.

Only when this has been done will it be possible to stage a land invasion of France.

VON THOMA BITTER AGAINST HITLER RULE

Captured General Reveals Army's Dislike of Fuehrer.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 21—Gen. Ritter Von Thoma, the first captured German general to arrive in London, is reported by the Daily Mail's military writer to have held in talks with the British that "Hitler has ruined the reichswehr."

The officer disclosed "remarkable facts about the bitter feeling prevalent in the inner circles of the German general staff," the writer said.

Captured by the British Nov. 4 while serving as commander of the Nazi Afrikan corps under Marshal Rommel, Von Thoma was described as one of the school of professional German soldiers who "dispute any encroachment in their sphere by civilians or politicians and all members of the Nazi party, including Hitler himself."

"He is believed to have said that Hitler's assumption of the supreme command spells disaster to the war machine built up by the devotion of the great general staff," the writer said. "Hitler's economic policy also has been severely criticized by Von Thoma. This agrees with recent reports from neutral sources."

ACCIDENTS

Power Co. line truck, started out across the field at 12 noon.

Hunting Along River

They walked along the Little Scioto river, which runs through the farm, and almost at once Mr. Houk shot a rabbit.

Bob, who has been a close friend for more than five years and who calls Mr. Houk "Pop," exclaimed "Pop, that's really picking them off."

When the underbrush along the river bank got too thick he told Mr Houk he was going to walk in the field and Mr. Houk walked on ahead. A pheasant flew into the air and Mr Houk shot up at it twice. He heard Bob cry, "Pop, something hit me in the eye," and answered, "Oh, now, don't be pulling that stuff."

Bob's call had come from about ten feet ahead of Mr. Houk and he said that while he was walking in the underbrush Bob, out in the field, had passed him and was ahead of him. Mr. Houk thought the youth was still trailing him.

Pellet Pierces Eye

Two stray pellets from Mr Houk's 12-gauge shotgun struck Bob, one piercing the eyeball and the other lodging in his forehead just above the eye.

Mr. Houk ran to Bob, who was kneeling on the ground, and when he saw what had happened, he lifted up the boy and they started for the house, Bob walking the short distance. Mr. Houk drove to the office of a Marion surgeon-specialist and then on to City hospital, following an X-ray examination, the injured eye was removed. Mr Houk remained at the hospital until late in the afternoon.

Bob, a ninth grade pupil at the Vernon Heights Junior High school, has been on hunting trips for about the last three years, Mr. Houk said, but yesterday was their first trip together.

The surgeon who operated on the youth said his general condition was excellent following the operation and that barring complications he would recover rapidly.

Two Youthful Hunters Killed in Ohio

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21 — Two young Ohioans were killed on the first day of the state's hunting season of pheasants and rabbits.

Loren Miller, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller of Kidron, Wayne county, was killed yesterday when a .22 calibre rifle held by a young companion discharged accidentally as the boys were setting traps.

(The other fatality was that of Richard Key, 12, of Marion who was killed late yesterday.)

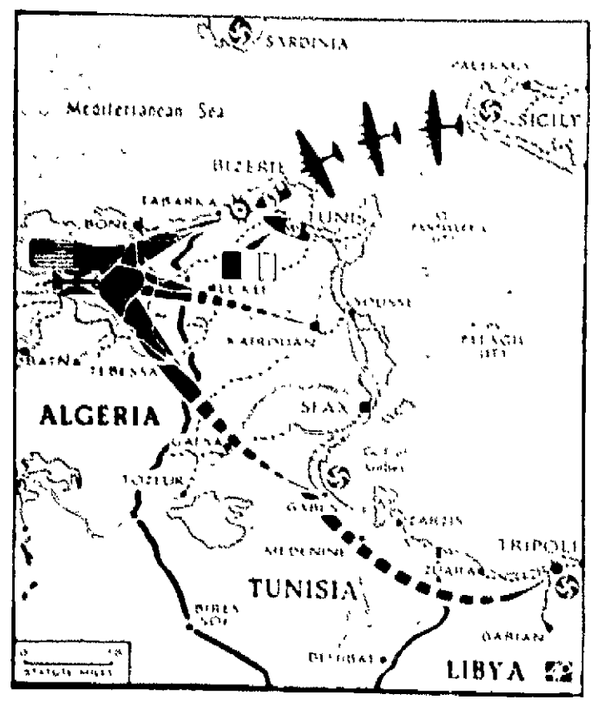
Raymond James, 12, of Lawrence, Summit county, was wounded in the leg in a hunting accident and Mrs. Wade E. Richardson, 39, of near Wadsworth, Medina county, reported she was struck in the face by stray pellets from a hunter's gun as she stood in the yard at her home.

A number of Seneca county hunters wore steel helmets of the first World war as they sought the daily bag limit of two cock pheasants or a brace of ruffed grouse and four rabbits.

A doe, frightened into the city of Youngstown by the guns of hunters, died of exhaustion after being chased by dogs.

The influx of Michigan nimrods was so heavy at Fremont that the county clerk ran out of forms for non-residents and advised applicants to try other county seats.

ALLIED FORCES ADVANCE IN TUNISIA



Pushing along the coastal road (upper arrow) in Tunisia, the British First Army, supported by crack American units, was reported within 35 miles of the Axis-held French naval base at Bizerte, Berlin acknowledged admitting near Tebessa. Southward, in two companion thrusts, the Allied forces presumably were striking toward Pont du Kouif (lower arrow) and Axis-held Gabes in two moves to cut off the Axis in the Bizerte-Tunis area and eventually to move on to Tripoli. French troops (circles symbol) have opened their own offensive against the Axis occupying forces, still being reinforced by air (planes) from Sicily.

Charles Fazio Elected Captain of 1943 Harding Grid Team

Chosen at School's Annual Football Dinner; List of Letter Winners Announced.

Charles Fazio, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fazio of 831 Forest street, will captain the 1943 Marion Harding High school football team. He was named to the captaincy in an election staged by 1942 letter winners at the school's annual grid dinner held Friday night in the home economics dining room at Harding High school.

Fazio succeeds Keith Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams of 393 Girard avenue, who captained the 1942 team to its fourth straight North Central Ohio league championship. Williams was the regular left end on this year's club. He also plays basketball.

Fazio, regular right tackle, was one of the stars in the team's championship drive. His most outstanding performance was in the Mt Vernon game when he intercepted a Mt Vernon pass and ran for a touchdown as the Harding team won 20-7. Fazio also is expected to see considerable varsity basketball service this winter. As a sophomore last year he won a reserve team letter.

Won All-NCO Honors

Both Fazio and Williams were selected by league sports writers for outstanding grid play at the end of the recent season. Williams was named to a first team berth while Fazio was one of the few juniors to receive honorable mention.

Another high point of last night's grid dinner, attended by officials of Harding and the city school system, was announcement of 1942 letter winners. Coach Victor Dorris introduced all youths winning varsity awards. The awards, ordered several weeks ago, have not arrived. They will be presented at a school assembly later.

Fourteen of the 17 seniors on the Harding squad were honored with varsity awards. The remaining three will receive service letters, indicating three years of Harding football service. Seniors who will receive the coveted varsity "H" award are Williams, Don Kay, Robert Dixon, Tom Hurst, Tom Boyd, Don Benedict, Harold Jenkins, LeRoy Harvey, Calvin Scott, Fred Ruhl, John Johnson, Lester Russell, Gene Foley and Jim Midlam. Jack Whaley, Jack Sidenstricker and Francis O'Hara were the seniors awarded service letters.

Juniors awarded letters were Fazio, Stu Young, Marion Price, Frank Louck, Vernal Orth and Lawrence Daley.

Sophomore Honored

Elvin Beach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin D. Beach of 597 Irey avenue, became the first sophomore to win a varsity letter in recent years. Harding school officials said it was unusual for either a football or basketball player to win a varsity letter his first year. By virtue of his stellar play in practice sessions Beach was initiated by Coach Dorris to replace LeRoy Harvey in the Harding backfield for the crucial Lima Central game earlier in the season. Beach performed brilliantly in this role and later, after Harvey regained play, was used as a substitute. He was almost always the first backfield substitute made by Dorris.

Bob Doutt was awarded the senior manager's letter. Dick Moore and Steve Bomas, junior managers this year, were named co-senior managers for next season.

Lori Marsh, program director of radio station WMRN, was the principal speaker. Marsh drew a comparison between this country's competitive sports program and the program which has completely deemphasized sports in axis dominated nations.

School Officials Speak

Several school officials, including Supt. E. F. Holt, Harding Principal O. H. P. Snyder, Dewey N. Bohrer, Harding athletic director and ex-basketball coach, and Joe Perlich, assistant grid coach, spoke briefly.

Following the program at the school members of the team, the coaching staff and school officials were honor guests at a dance at the Y. M. C. A. sponsored by Club Co-Ed, the school's social club.

MANY FARM WORKERS NEEDED NEXT YEAR

Million and Half Required, U. S. Experts Say.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—Need for 1,500,000 new farm workers next year to meet food production requirements was forecast today by the bureau of agricultural economics today if present military induction and industrial employment trends continue.

Agriculture, the bureau said, will lose a million workers from its labor force during the 12-month period ending next July 1. Indications are, it added, that an additional 500,000 will have been lost by the end of the 1943 harvest season.

"At the same time" the bureau said, "peace[illegible] agricultural production next year would require 200,000 more workers than were available in 1942. To meet these needs in full, next year we would have to recruit 1,500,000 new workers."

The bureau's figures were made public shortly after Secretary of Agriculture Wickard told farmers in a radio talk that recent increases in wartime food demands caused him to feel "more and more concern" over the nation's ability to meet these demands.

Ohio State-Michigan Battle Today Pits Youthful Paul Brown Against Fritz Crisler

80,000 Expected To See Two Mighty Clubs Struggle for Western Conference Championship Laurels.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21—Paul Brown of Ohio State pits his youthful coaching skill against Michigan's veteran Fritz Crisler as their powerful football teams battle before 80,000 rabid fans today.

A win would give Ohio an undisputed championship in Brown's second year in the Big Ten.

At stake for Crisler is his record of not having lost to an Ohio team since he took over the Michigan coaching reins in 1938. But he has had plenty of respect for Brown's skill since an underdog Ohio team deadlocked Michigan 20-all in 1941, Brown's first year out of high school ranks.

Wolves Lose Twice

Michigan also can grab a share of the conference title by trimming Ohio, which lost only to Wisconsin this year. Michigan bowed to the Iowa Seahawks and Minnesota.

An overflow crowd will sit in at Ohio stadium as the well-balanced squads renew a football rivalry that is one of the most bitter in the mid-west.

While Brown has insisted his squad has gotten along "on a shoestring" this season, Crisler said as he brought his team to town, "Ohio hasn't got anything to worry about."

Michigan got some bad news with the information that Ohio's fastest halfback, pint-sized Tommy James, would be able to see some action despite a shoulder separation suffered in the Illinois game last week.

Brown said, however, "I'm not planning to use him unless something unforseen comes up when I can use him in a spot run." James' spot running accounted for two touchdowns against Illinois.

The probable lineups:

Michigan	Pos.	Ohio State
Sharpe	LE	Steinberg
Wistert	LT	Willis
Kolesar	LG	Dean
Pregulman	C	Vickroy
Franks	RG	Houston
Pritula	RT	Csurl
Mindar	RE	Shaw
Celhami	QB	Lynn
Kuzma	LH	Sarringhaus
White	RH	Horvath
Wiese	FB	Fekete

Kickoff 2.30 p. m. (EWT).

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—Judging by the noise in the Garden last night, Willie Pep must be the biggest thing that's happened to the state of Connecticut since the Danbury fair closed down . . . The out-of-town customers were a lot livelier than anything in the ring . . . At that, Pep proved that you don't have to be as old as Chalky Wright to know a lot of boxing tricks . . . By winning the featherweight title, Willie cleared the way for settlement of another of the disputed championships . . . Manager Harry Burnkrant reports that Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson, the N. B. A. boss, will be ready for action about Dec. 15, which should be just in time to pull in another big crowd with Pep. There wasn't any crowd appeal in trying to settle a title dispute between Wright and Wilson . . . And as Chalky remarked about his 40 per cent of the $72,000 gate last night . . . That's nice compensation."

Pep Takes Over As Champion of Featherweights

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—No one did a hand-stand in Madison Square Garden's ring, but Willie Pep succeeded Chalky Wright on the world featherweight throne today strictly "on his head."

Now, this is not to say that the greatest crowd ever to see a featherweight title tussle sat in on an exhibition of gymnastics last night. But it was simply by fighting Wright the only way the aging Los Angeles Negro can be beaten—by using his head all the way—that the Pep kid is the new boss of the 127-pounders today.

To say Pep used his head all the way is not to imply that slippery Willie had a glove on his noggin and worked it as a third hand. In fact, about the only weapon he used, with the exception of a dozen or so right hands that he let go (probably by accident) through the entire 15 rounds, was a half-punch, half-push left jab that bounced off Chalky's face as if it owned it.

The fight proved highly entertaining to the crowd of 19,521 who tossed $71,868.70 into Mike Jacobs' money boxes.

Hunters Fill Hotels And Camps in Wyandot Co.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Nov. 21—Wyandot County hunt-men started their annual bunny-blitz and pheasant hunt over the sections of the county held most likely to produce targets for their favorite guns, Friday noon.

There were plenty of hunters, including the ever growing feminine division, even though many young nimrods are now hunting larger game on foreign fields, but reports on the quantity of game to be found varied from "plenty" to "none at all."

Shells threatened to become a problem as most dealers found their shelves almost bare by the time the opening gun of the noon barage sounded.

Rooms at hotels and tourist lodges were also at a premium as out-of-town marksmen rushed to make this and next week-end count in their hunting season before the first of the month brings gas rationing to keep them in the cities far from the "good hunting" grounds.

First Quarter Safety Gives Marion Tigers 9 to 6 Win Over Columbus 11

Held to scoreless ties in two previous engagements the Marion Tigers, a semi-professional football team composed of employes of the Scioto Ordnance Plant, ended their touchdown famine in downing the Columbus Denton Service team 9 to 6 last night at Harding stadium.

The game, marking Halfback Howard Hodges' last appearance with the Tigers, was played under ideal weather conditions. One of the two previous contests between the two teams was played on a muddy field. Hodges leaves for naval training today.

The Tigers scored once in the first period. Guard Martin Lewis and Tackle Gerald Hermelee breaking through to block a Columbus punt. The blocked kick was recovered behind the Columbus goal by a Denton back for an automatic safety.

In the second quarter a Columbus pass was partially blocked by Hodges. End Bernard McCombs raced back to intercept the ball. Falling in behind a swarm of Marion blockers, McCombs trekked 65 yards to score. Charles Mauk's placement was good.

Columbus struck pay dirt in the third period when Ryan took a 25-yard pass from Peters in the end zone. The attempted conversion was blocked by a hard rushing Marion line.

CIOZA'S PLACEKICK DEFEATS MICHIGAN FRESHMAN 16 TO 14

32-Yard Boot in Fourth Quarter Wins for Buck Frosh.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21—Ohio State university's freshmen footballers set a perfect example for the Buck varsity in today's Big Ten title clash with Michigan's Wolverines.

The Buck frosh handed the Michigan first-year gridders a 16-14 defeat yesterday, giving the Ohio yearlings an undefeated season in the Western conference's first venture into freshman football competition. The junior Bucks previously defeated Indiana and Pittsburgh.

Big Lou Groza, Martins Ferry's placekicking satellite, staked the Ohio frosh to their victory yesterday, booting a 32-yard field goal in the third period to give Ohio a 16 to 7 lead.

The Wolverines scored seven points in a fourth-quarter rally, but Groza's field goal made the final spurt useless for the visitors.

Fullback Joe Whisler of Ohio and Halfback Dick Walterhouse of Michigan snared offensive honors in the game which attracted 3,369 customers.

Whisler, a Willard High school product, scored both Buck touchdowns, plunging for one in the first period and scampering 37 yards for the other in the second quarter. Walterhouse plunged three yards for Michigan's first marker in the opening period, and climaxed the last period aerial drive with a 14-yard touchdown run. He kicked both extra points.

Groza, besides his game-winning field goal, also added a point after touchdown for the Bucks in the first period.

Tommy Phillips, ace Buckeye passer, was carried from the field with an injured ankle late in the first half.

Wool Trade Volume Is Small This Week

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Nov. 21—The Commercial Bulletin said today:

"The volume of business done in the wool market this week has been small, although there is a demand for such wool as is available, fine or medium, greasy or scoured, domestic or foreign at firm prices.

"The report that an understanding has been reached in Washington concerning the purchase by our government of surplus Uruguayan wools resulted in the release of offerings in quantity from Montevideo at 35½ to 37 cents for round lots of super wools. Moderate business has been done for this country in Argentina but hardly anything in Australia or the cape.

"Some bids are being received for the navy and for baratheia fairies for the WAACS.

"Western buying has been very small this week, except for the sale of about a million pounds of mohair in Texas at 46 and 50 cents for adult and kid."

The paper published these Ohio quotations: Domestic fleeces—One lame unwashed 49-50; ½ blood combing 50-51; ¾ blood combing 53-54; ¼ blood combing 53-54.

Six Americans Elude Japs Four Days in Jungle

By SEGT. JAMES W. HURLBUT
Marine Corps Combat Correspondent
Distributed by
The Associated Press

GUADACANAL, Oct. 29—(Delayed)—After five harrowing nights and four equally terrifying days spent in a jungle infested with enemy troops, five Marines and a Navy pharmacist's mate slithered through our front lines to safety this morning.

Their story is one of days without food, constant contact with the enemy, our own shell fire bursting around them, and a grim battle with the jungle itself.

Half starved, exhausted, dirty, cut by thorns and brambles, the six were given a royal greeting by astonished comrades.

"Where'd you guys come from? We thought you were dead. How'd you get back in?"

"Well, we just prayed and kept moving. And, believe me, we did a lot of praying."

The speaker was young Private First Class Richard E. Hollinger, USMC, of York, Pa., acclaimed the hero of the saga by his five fellow wanderers. Pharmacist's Mate Second Class Homer H. Berry, USN, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.; Private Cecil A. Bazzell, USMC, Thomaston, Ga.; Private George E. Sagely, USMC, Mineral, Va.; Private Edward C. Rathman, USMC, Hartford, Conn.; and Private Mathew C. Costantino, USMC, Rochester, N. Y.

The six were members of a 40-man platoon on outposts duty in reconnaissance beyond our positions on the night of October 24, when the Japanese forces attacked to the west of our positions in an attempt to recapture our air field. When the Japs moved up into position, they swarmed around the platoon, cutting it off from our lines.

Two men were killed. Thirty-one men—including ten wounded—got back to our main body during the night. The six who came in today were among the thirteen previously listed as "missing in action."

ALLIANCE WITH NAZIS ADVOCATED BY LAVAL

Calls for New Legions To Oppose U. S. and Britain.

By The Associated Press

VICHY (FROM FRENCH BROADCASTS), Nov. 21—Pierre Laval advocated an alliance with Germany as Europe's sole hope for peace in a broadcast to the people of Nazi-occupied France last night and declared new volunteer legions would be raised in answer "the fresh insults which France has had to suffer" from the allied campaign in North Africa.

"We are again seeking reconciliation and an entente with Germany," Laval declared in his first address since he was given dictatorial powers and named as political heir to Marshal Petain.

He accused the United States and Britain of "tearing away bit by bit the French empire because of their losses in the Pacific," and said he was certain of a German victory.

"From what has happened in North Africa we have discovered the fate that waits us tomorrow if Roosevelt gets away with it," Laval said. "We would have to submit to a domination by Communists and Jews."

He scoffed at American and British assurances that the French North African empire would be restored to a democratic France after the war, and said that instead those nations were "seizing the (French) empire seeking compensation for losses (to Japan in the orient) which they know are irreparable."

drones in Sicily and shipping off the Tunisian coast. One 2,000-ton ship was reported bombed and torpedoed and left sinking. Another vessel was hit off Cape Bon, Tunisia.

To the west there lay a forbidding 400-mile stretch of Libyan sand to Tripoli, main Libyan base of the axis. The Algiers radio reported that Fighting French forces were striking northward toward Tripoli from the Lake Chad region, 1,000 miles to the south. There is no seaport worthy of the name between Bengasi and Tripoli through which Rommel might receive supplies and reinforcements.

The objective of such a northward march by the Fighting French would be to trap the fleeing remnants of Rommel's army somewhere between El Agheila and Tripoli.

An allied force from Algiers was believed cutting eastward across central Tunisia toward Gabes on the coastal road to Tripoli, 80 miles beyond the Tunisian border.

French Fight Nazis

Dispatches from allied headquarters said the Germans had taken Gabes, but that French Tunisian troops were in action in an effort to prevent the Nazis from establishing communications with Tripoli.

Earlier the radio at Brazzaville, French equatorial Africa, had reported that "all Tunisian territory with the exception of the Tunis-Bizerte stretch now is in the hands of the allies."

New French recruits for the growing allied army in Algeria and Tunisia were expected, Fighting French quarters here said.

If the French colonial troops can hold the coastal road southeast of Gabes until British and U. S. forces reach them, the axis armies will be split into Tunisian and Libyan forces and Rommel's position will be even more precarious.

The German radio declared that Nazi forces in Tunisia were being reinforced rapidly and axis planes were dive-bombing allied troops. German military quarters were quoted as saying that "operations in this war theater will be limited mainly to fighting in the coastal areas and for naval bases."

The Moscow radio at Rabat said these German reinforcements included tanks transported by air.

LIST EASY AS BUYING EBBS

Profit Cashing Tends To Halt Market Advance Made Friday.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 — The buying tide ebbed in parts of today's stock market as profits were cashed on Friday's bulge and commitments lightened for week-end protection but gold mines and other post-war favorites retained a degree of popularity.

The battle news, dividends, earnings and technical factors involved in the recent correction of the lengthy recovery push still were props for bullish sentiment. The disposition of most customers, however, was to step lightly pending clarification of the tax selling question.

Sales volume was in the neighborhood of 300,000 shares. Closing prices were a trifle spotty and narrow.

International Telephone, most active "peace" stock of the preceding session, opened up a fraction on a 4,000-share trade at a new top for the year. Dome mines again touched a peak level for 1942.

Occasional gainers included N. Y. Central, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Standard Oil (NJ) and Consolidated Edison.

HOG PRICE FALL AIDS PACKERS

Plants Again Show Profit on Pork Trade, Livestock Men Say.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 21—Hog prices finally have declined to a point where packers probably are again operating at a profit in their pork business, livestock circles said today. It is a rather unique situation for most packers, who claim to have lost money on their meat operations for many months.

Prices have slumped steadily for about four weeks, cancelling much of the gain scored throughout the greater part of this year. The practical top at the week's close was $13.10 a hundred pounds, lowest since late March. This contrasted with a high of $13.70 in October.

The downturn, trade sources said, was based on the fact that heavy shipments are expected within a few weeks and packers believe they can get all the slaughter material they need at that time. There are now indications that the supply is beginning to expand.

All sources are eagerly awaiting the anticipated increase in marketings. Domestic consumers have found difficulty in getting certain types of pork meat at retail stores, the army is anxious to obtain meat without placing too great a strain on civilian supplies and the agricultural marketing administration, government lend-lease buying agency, is ready to expand its purchases along with the heavier runs.

The price at which hogs must sell in order to provide a "cut-out" profit to packers operating under pork ceilings depends to some extent upon the efficiency of individual packing plants. However, observers are agreed that present prices should allow most packers some profit, although it is admitted that there may be a few who still are operating at a loss.

It has been a difficult year for all packers. Some of the smaller plants have withdrawn from business. Larger concerns have had to make up their meat losses on other commodities, such as dried eggs, which they sell.

Hogs closed the week on losses of about 40 cents. Steers were lower. Fat lambs advanced 35 to 50 cents.

"When the Japs rush, they yell in English, 'blood for the emperor; come out, marines, you're licked.' There seems to be a lot of American-educated Japanese among the snipers. They're always shouting in English from the trees."

Jap Resistance Stiffens

In New Guinea, westward of the Solomons, the Japanese fought savagely to forestall what seemed to be imminent disaster. The fiercest fighting of the campaign raged in the Buna-Gona areas where American and Australian troops had pinned the invaders back against the northeastern coast.

The Japanese increased their aerial activity, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's allied headquarters reported today (Australian time) and lashed back at the advancing allies with light artillery, mortars and machine guns.

In the absence of more important nearby targets, Army bombers from the Guadalcanal airport attacked cargo vessels in the Buin area at the southeastern end of Bougainville Island, Nov. 18, the Navy announced, and shot down 14 enemy planes during the attack. No American losses were reported.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"I CAN GIVE you my solemn assurance, my dearest Georges," he responded instantly, "that what I have to tell you now has danger in it only to me, and I am perfectly willing that your father and your husband should know about it. Later, when I can get in touch with a representative of your government without the peril of being branded as a spy, I want to tell them things I have discovered which are a danger to your country."

"That might be arranged," I said, thinking of my father in the next room, listening acutely to what he was saying. "My father has certain contacts with government officials which might enable him to grant your wish."

"I shall be glad if he can do that later," he said. "Just now I must talk only to you."

His voice now seemed familiar, and for the first time, I was sure he was the pseudo old man of the cafe.

Recognizes Georges

"I do not know just how to tell you the most vital thing of all," he said.

"Would it help you, Georges," I asked, smiling at him, "if I told you that I know it already?"

For a full second he sat motionless, the eyes behind his thick, disguising glasses staring at me. Then with an almost convulsive movement he pulled off the glasses, put them on the table and fairly leaped to his feet. All pretense of feebleness was gone as he dropped to his knees beside me in a gesture which I knew was, by reason of his training, as natural in him as his quickened breathing.

For his eyes were the well-remembered eyes of young Georges, exiled king of Trees, believed by most of the world to be dead, and on whose head a high price had been set by the few international conspirators who knew he was alive.

"Oh, Aunt Madge, Aunt Madge!" he exclaimed hoarsely, looking at me as might a man who had just received a last-minute reprieve from execution. He used the name which he and Noel had borrowed from Mary, in that old time when what Dickey called "our international romance" was in its first flowering. "You know me, and I do not have to pretend, to one friend, at least.

"I can't take off this horrible wig and beard," he went on. "They are meant to defy detection, and they are so artistically put on that it will take something like a surgical operation to remove them, if the time ever comes when I can resume my own identity."

His voice was so hopeless as he spoke the last words, that I could not let him go on without a bit of encouragement.

Gives Him Hope

"That time will come, Georges," I said.

"I hope so," he said. "But at least I can be rid of those awful glasses for a few minutes."

Then, as if he could no longer struggle against the current of emotion engulfing him, he clutched my hands, put his face down against them, and I heard one of the most heartbreaking things in the world—the convulsive sobbing of a strong man, normally proud of his power and his ability to face anything without flinching, but who has been tortured, mentally or physically, beyond human endurance.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Heart Tests

THE SOLDIER requires a stout heart in more ways than one. Any extra work or strain must eventually be borne by the heart. Even the slightest defect will enlarge under the pressure of the marches, drills, exercises and stints of all kinds demanded by training and these will be greatly augmented in combat.

My mail is full of complaints from draftees and applicants who have been turned down by the Army or Navy examining boards on account of their hearts. They say they have been doing full hard work for many years and have no symptoms of fatigue or symptoms referable to the heart.

This, of course, is undoubtedly true. One of the prime and well-known features of many forms of heart trouble is that they are silent. The subject may go years without knowing there is anything the matter with his heart. Then, only on a life insurance examination is found a slight murmur. And life insurance companies recognize that these are of little danger, because they accept many of them although on an increased premium basis. The defect may not cause any discomfort until the subject enters the age of arterial change—50 or 60.

But the conditions of civil life which render the heart subject safe for an insurance company to accept are far different from the army. The army examinations are intended to prevent as many persons as possible from losing days from duty, and any potential source of disability is cause for rejection.

In the examination as conducted by most boards, a history of past illnesses is first taken. The examiner learns a lot from this—the stoic is as equally suspected as the excitable individual. The latter's heart may go to pieces in battle and the former is really fit only for limited kinds of duties.

A dislocation of the apex beat of the heart, an abnormal pulse either in rate or regularity, a throbbing of the vessels of the neck, prominent eyeballs, all indicate an unstable nervous system and require a further careful examination. Of course, heart murmurs or persistent high blood pressure are causes for flat rejection.

A form of heart abnormality which seems to have a purely nervous base is closely associated with army life. It was called "soldier's heart" by the Philadelphia physician, Da Costa, in our own Civil War, and it bobbed up again in World War I, and we called it effort syndrome. The principle symptom was an extremely rapid pulse—so rapid that it prevented the subject from doing any strenuous duty. As soon as he is released from the army the heart returns to normal. It occurs in unstable, nervous, high-strung persons and the examiner should be able to spot it and save the army the trouble of taking care of them when they bog down. They are liabilities, not assets, to the army and navy.

Exercise tests are used to attempt to measure the selectee's powers of endurance, but they are not regarded as very satisfactory.
